National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment
A cold, showery airstream will bring wintry showers across the region. Whilst most showers at low levels will be of rain, they will turn to snow locally in heavier bursts. In Scotland, local accumulations of 4 cm or so are expected above 200 m, with around 10 cm above 400 m.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Snow and Ice

Valid from 18:00 on Thu, 31st Dec 2015 until 12:00 on Fri, 01st Jan 2016

Showers of rain, sleet and snow will lead to local accumulations on hills above 200-300 m, mainly over Scotland. They will ease during the night but will leave a risk of icy patches which lasts into New Year's Day. Please be aware of these wintry hazards.
